

In the name of the God we trust

Dear reader;

This saga is presented to you after years of study in history, psychology, philosophy, politics, economy and many more topics, so I must insist that you think twice in what you read.

These books you see before you, don't just represent a fantasy world, they are a simulation of a dystopian political system that may have happened in the course of history once or twice, so I ask that you think deeply in what you read.

I'm afraid fate has forced my hand to speak with you in riddles, so I tried to send a message through a secret language you and I share in these books.

But worry not for if you hold these books at your disposal, you stand among the minority I trust to understand what I want to teach through the books.

I will offer visuals to improve your experience imagining the world you read about but I trust you to picture the world I wrote for yourself.

I ask of you to honor these series written with my limited knowledge by thinking about what they have to offer, for this is all that I aim for in these books.

ORINTHAL
EK FERIELEZEL

VARUKTESH
TER POK

NIVARASH

ARTAMUR

ZARIM

TAHL

URKASHUR

KELVARAD

DRAVSHKAR

MIRAZÜN

SAHRADUN

And now after you witnessed the world I want you to picture, I would like to leave picturing Zarim's map to your own imagination as I did many tasks.

Your imagination is key to the entire story, I left you an open field of view so that you could picture it however you wish.

I trust you will imagine a far better world and a city but I see fit to show the map to help you coordinate.

As a final quote because I hate long intros to books.

This story is almost a solo project so I expect you to tolerate any flaws you might encounter.

Enjoy reading;

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read 'Shahriyar Eghdam Shargh', written in a cursive style.

All copyrights reserved for the author,

Shahriyar Eghdam Shargh.

Any copy without the intro is invalid.

